FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MARCH 2018

Process Control Re-Introduces Website!

Process Control would like to announce the re-introduction of its website at www.process-control.com. With a fresh new look, users can navigate with ease through a site that has been designed with industrial buyers in mind. The primary feature is a user friendly integrated product catalog on the main page that allows users to search and compare Process Control equipment and technical data. Product details are directly visible on the website without the need to download a specification sheet. The website also features a profile of our company and management team and a full listing of our sales representatives across the United States. It is now easier than ever for processors in the plastics industry to find products and information to meet their auxiliary equipment needs.
